FILIATION AND ADOPTION : INTERRELATED THOUGHTS

ALBERTO EIGUER

Summary

The author studies the influence of the link children- parent begetter on the adoptive link through the proposal of three images: the shadow, the ghost and the negative. He considers that filiation will be able to be (re) constructed thanks to, amongst other factors, affiliation, which is helped in its turn by cohabitation in the family home. At the same time, narration plays a decisive role. To broach the effects of the latter, the trauma is analysed and this sets off the defences and thoughts and narcissism disorders. When reading these two cases of psychoanalytic family therapy, we find that new family myths can be created. To adopt implies, in a way, a reconfiguration of family organisation and a reformulation of each member's place and function.

Key words: Adoption, filiation, « shadow » of the other link, affiliation, trauma, narration.

IDENTITY AND IDENTIFICATION IN ADOPTION

ANNA MARIA NICOLÒ

Summary

Through a clinical case of a mother and daughter's parallel therapy, the author discusses the issues of identity and identification in international adoption.

In certain cases with these families, the family history of an adolescent joins up with the family myth. The problems of international adoption or families with emigration problems push our theories of parenthood, filiation and identity to breaking point.

THE ADOPTIVE FAMILY: THE INFLUENCES OF GRIEF ON THE TIES FORMATION

MIRABENT V.; ARAMBURU I.; DAVINS M.; PEREZ TESTOR C.

Summary

In this study we describe the kind of mourning present in the adoptive family and how this influences the creation of parent-child bonds. Using clinical cases, we shall demonstrate how the degree to which the parents' mourning is elaborated will help or hinder the child from elaborating their own and achieve better adaptation and a mutual relationship. Adoptive parents must have emotional capacities in order to exercise their parental role and create this bond. Our clinical experience reveals the importance of detecting mourning that has not been elaborated in the parents' reasons for adopting, thus staving off difficulties in the development of a solid bond.

PINOCCHIO: GEPETTO AND THE BLUE FAIRY'S ADOPTED SON? ABANDONED CHILD?

VÉRONIQUE MASUY

Summary

Pinocchio is the subject of this revised study on the need of children to lie. The hypothesis of this study mainly is to examine why children from broken homes, lacking parental care, or, as in the case of Pinocchio, an adopted child, feel the need to lie.

Key words: lies, failure in symbolisation, narcissism pathology, ego ideal, filiation, affiliation, process in individuation.

NARRATION, HISTORY, CONSTRUCTION

CLAUDIA ARTONI SCHLESINGER

SUMMARY

In this piece of work I will try to outline how evident the search for one's own personal history is in a situation of an adopted child, and, furthermore, how such a history may be constructed through the building up of a new narration.

Keywords: adoption, narration, construction, personal history.

ADOPTION IS IT PARADIGMATIC

IVONNE ROZENBERG

Summary

An adopted child is shaped from his singularity like every child. The articulation of parents identifications and desires, will give him a peculiar an own way of being incorporated as the third in the couple.

The particularity of biologic or adopted parents, recreating their edipic histories, the hereditary myth, the social inclusion in the subjetivity, the familiar tradition: structure a net where a son is nested.

The ethics is present, when the professional transfers the absolute and allows the reconstruction of the history of the patient in a climate of respect and freedom.

This article proposes the acknowledgement an analysis of the unconscious aspect in adoption of this relationship to make possible an enlightened, creative and free.

A clinical case is presented of a patient who adopted a baby. The clinical presentation links with the theoretical reflection about Adoption. The innovative inclusion of the adopted girl with the mother in the therapeutic setting, opens the way of interrogations about the clinic of Adoption.

MATERNITY, SUBJECTIVATION, VIOLENCE

DANIELA LUCARELLI, GABRIELA TAVAZZA

Summary

Starting from some considerations on the social changes undergone by families in the past decades the authors focus on the forms of violence that originate in the couple dynamics and find their expression in the mother-child relationship, aware, however, that violent situations cannot be explained by one single meaning but are determined by illustrating their clinical experience with a few vignettes, the authors see violence acted by the mother as related to “faults” in her subjectivation with a partial and/or temporary disorganization of psychic reality. Violence, in fact, seems to emerge from a sense of serious threat to her internal setup and represents an effort at recovering her threatened subjectivity. The quality of the couple relation and the function of the partner/father are also examined. This function can be highly significant for the evolution of the difficulties due to father’s holding capacity and his ability to act as a third. The authors describe the psychological context that favours violence, starting from the conditions where it emerges, and distinguish these conditions from the modes of organization of the expression of violence (P. Jeammet, 2006).

Key words: Maternity, subjectivation, violence.
